

WILL HIS SCORED.

Germany's Emperor Charged With Being the Cause of Great Unrest in That Country.

THE SPEAKER WAS CALLED DOWN.

Royal Speeches are Not to be Subjected to Criticism by the Members of the Reichstag.

PRINCE BISMARCK WAS ALSO ATTACKED.

The Indications are That the Duty Will be Removed From American Corps.

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—The debate in the Reichstag on the budget today was unwieldily lively. After Herr Buhl (National Liberal) had spoken in defense of the policy pursued by Prince Bismarck, during his tenure of office as Chancellor of the Empire, and had commented adversely upon the course adopted by Chancellor von Caprivi, Herr Bebel, socialist leader, criticized the rapid increase of the Imperial debt, and of the increasing expenditure.

"How," he asked, "could such immense masses of troops be long moved and fed. Expressions had recently been used which conveyed to these masses of soldiers the idea that they might be employed not only as a foreign force, but also against an enemy within the Empire."

Agitated murmurs from every part of the house followed this allusion to the recent utterance of the Emperor. Herr Bebel continued, said that with every thousand new recruits, social democracy was being more and more strongly infused into the army.

As Chancellor von Caprivi had pictured journalism as a present propagator of unrest, he felt bound to say that many errors were also engaged in the work of agitation, and cited as an instance the speech recently delivered at Erfurt by a high general.

The Emperor Not Subject to Criticism. At this point the Vice President of the Reichstag, Count Ballestrem, interrupted the speaker, refusing to admit that the Emperor's speech was to be subjected to criticism.

Herr Bebel said he would leave his comparison in the hands of the public, who will know that it was not journalism that spread a feeling of unrest through the country.

Touching the protectionist policy, he said the heavy tariffs imposed by the Government, coupled with military expenditure, had created enormous economic difficulties.

The slight reduction in corn duties in the treaty of commerce with Austria would not suffice to offset the want of proper nourishment from which millions suffer, the result being an enormous increase of disease, mortality and crime.

The structure of the middle class of society, Herr Bebel continued, was built in a swamp, in which it was slowly sinking, probably to make room for another and better social organization.

The country had got rid of one enemy of social reform when Prince Bismarck was driven from power.

Herr Count Ballestrem again called Herr Bebel to order, declaring that the expression used with respect to the Emperor could not be permitted, being directed against an absent member of the House.

Herr Bebel replied that Prince Bismarck had not yet taken his seat in the Reichstag, and that his denunciation of the Government, which, he asserted, was following, as far as it dared, in Prince Bismarck's footsteps, while assuming the role of a protector of the working classes.

The Chancellor To Be Ameliorated. Chancellor von Caprivi said he believed the country appreciated the efforts made by the Government for the amelioration of the lot of the working classes.

The Chancellor proceeded to refer to the Guelph fund bill shortly to be introduced in the Landtag, the abolition of the Finance Ministry, and the interest arising therefrom free of control by Parliament.

According to the provisions of the bill an account is to be rendered to the Audit Office, and the proceeds of the fund have been applied and this report is to be communicated to the Landtag.

It is announced that the Emperor will receive the former President of the Reichstag, Herr Miquel, Imperial Minister of Finance, to preside over the deliberations of the commission, but the Finance Minister declined to act and suggested that Herr Koch, President of the Reichstag, be selected in his stead.

The ultra-Conservatives are endeavoring to make house reform, coupled with the Hebrew question, a plank in their party platform.

MAJOR GRANT IN COUNTY DOWN.

His Wealthy Aunt Likely to Leave Him All Her Property.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Major Grant, of New York, is stopping at the Imperial Hotel, in Newry, County Down, but he spends most of his time at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Patrick Dempsey, on Sugar Island, where she lies on her deathbed. Mrs. Dempsey is more than 80 years of age. She is the widow of Patrick Dempsey, an esteemed citizen of Newry, who carried on the business of baker and general merchant, and died 30 years ago.

Since his death Mrs. Dempsey has continued the business, and has amassed a considerable fortune. She has no children, but a niece has been living with her for several years and is now carrying on the bakery business.

Mrs. Dempsey has been extremely fond of her nephew, Major Grant, ever since he first visited her, 18 years ago, when she is first proud of her extraordinary political success. They have been in correspondence ever since his first visit, and when she realized, two or three months ago, that her end was near, she sent a most urgent request for him to visit her before her death.

She has recalled considerably since his arrival and now cannot bear to have him leave her presence. She has always said that she would leave him the bulk of her fortune, and it is generally believed that her will is made in his favor. Major Grant has been in Newry and on the coast of Newry, he has many cousins and other relations in the neighborhood, and the real estate in the neighborhood, and he has sold his farm at Mayo Bridge, in the vicinity, almost half a century ago, and emigrated to America.

Major Grant intends to remain in Newry until he can get a ship to Belfast, where he will be joined by Dock Commissioner Crain, for an inspection of the dock system.

DEATHS HERE AND ELSEWHERE.

Commodore William Ronckenoff. William Ronckenoff, the oldest retired Commodore in the United States Navy, died at his home in New York, where he has lived for the last six years. He was 82 years old, and leaves a son, George. Commodore Ronckenoff was the son of a Philadelphia family, and entered the navy in 1822, as an apprentice on the Experiment, and served on the frigate Congress. He was sent with dispatches to the commander of the Pacific squadron, and was attached to the latter squadron for two years. He was made a Commander in June, 1824, and served on the Commodore in 1824, after 41 years of continuous service, and retired the following year. He had been in the service of the United States Navy along the African coast on the Fortmouth.

Rev. Clement Koppernagel. The Rev. Clement Koppernagel, for 20 years pastor of the St. Lawrence German Catholic Church in Harrisburg, died in that city Friday in the 53d year of his age. He established the German Catholic congregation in Harrisburg, and it is now one of the largest of any denomination in that city. He was born in Westphalia, Prussia, and was ordained a priest at the age of 23. He was a member of the German National Convention and was chairman of the delegation. In 1853 he returned to Los Angeles, and leaves a wife, a son and daughter.

Hon. John A. Willis died in Los Angeles on Thanksgiving. He was born in Pittsburgh on October 21, 1840, and was admitted to the bar here in 1862, and practiced until 1883. He represented California at the Republican National Convention and was chairman of the delegation. In 1883 he returned to Los Angeles, and leaves a wife, a son and daughter.

M. B. Moss, leader of the radical party in Denver, has died in Copenhagen from heart disease.

Sir James Porter, C.B., baronet member of the House of Commons for the middle division of Warwick, died at London yesterday.

A. D. Perkins died at noon yesterday of typhoid fever at the residence of his wife, Mrs. Perkins, at the residence of Stationer Engineers, and his funeral will take place to-morrow.

GENS AT HOME.

Magnificent Jewels Shown by Mr. J. C. Grogan, 443 Market Street.

It seems to be a matter of small moment that the show should be held when you are in the store, for the jewels are so brilliant, catching every gleam of light, that even on a dull day the effect is dazzling. That the citizens need only apply to Mr. Grogan to have carried out to perfection the most elaborate or the most delicate design, or design, is evidenced by an inspection of the jewels now ready for the holiday and wedding seasons. Brooches, cases, envelopes, great rolls of cotton wool, pieces of silk, were one great mass of superb jewels, not to omit the number of pieces which were thrown with artistic carelessness in the showcases.

There is a wonderful assortment of jewels in combination, not only as to the stones themselves, but as to colorings. They range from the most ornate pieces to the modest, dainty affairs permissible to the school girl. The scope as to styles is unlimited, for not only have those of last year's style been carried over, but many new ones have been added to sell the time, thus enabling those who may command these beautiful things to have in perfect mode a large collection from great rolls of cotton wool, pieces of silk, were one great mass of superb jewels, not to omit the number of pieces which were thrown with artistic carelessness in the showcases.

There is a perfect page for rings this season, and they certainly have their advantages, as they may be worn when tiaras and necklaces are omitted or used as a revival of the antique, which can only be termed "large" rings, and they are not to be confounded with the popular "marquise" but one of these can be worn at all times, and they are generally new. By gradual descent one arrives at the simple, pretty ornament for the young girl.

NEW USES FOR BROOCHES. The old-fashioned brooches or breastpins were perforce to be placed at or near the throat—not so now. The styles of drapery of the present have led people to experimenting, and in consequence a lace or a chiffon is caught here, there, anywhere about the robe with the most entrancing results. The jeweler has been quick to realize the importance of the fact, and brooches and ornaments have been so arranged that they may be grouped together at pleasure as one piece; take for instance a "fleur de lis" or a "bow-knot" and add to it one of the latest designs, and you have an ideal ornament, for brooches and "fleur de lis" continue to be very popular, but Mr. Grogan refuses to be bound by any one or two styles, and he shows you a novel, two, and a novel three, until one is fairly bewildered. Two distinctly opposite styles are shown, the first formed of emeralds and diamonds, and the very newest thing called a "pin wheel." The spirit of the idea is carried out in the most wonderful manner; you have the graceful curves of this jeweled pyrotechnic in diamonds; the center or hub of the wheel an immense pearl; the glowing emeralds and diamonds are found in the pink, red, yellow, pale green, light purple and different blues of sapphires. Imagine pink sapphires! It requires an expert like Mr. Grogan to guide you through the intricacies of the world of gems.

In general forms there are the necklaces, bracelets, large and small as to settings, ear ornaments in every size of selected stones, hair ornaments lovelier than ever shown before, and an unlimited amount of the oddest, prettiest designs intended to be massed together anywhere about the costume where they will look the best.

MEN WEAR JEWELRY NOW, and Mr. Grogan has brought to the front a magnificent collection of jeweled scarfpins and neckties, and in the diamonds, the ways defand by the latter. There are, of course, studs in profusion, but this year the rage in Paris has been for the tiny "diamond" studs, and three, and it is needless to say that Mr. Grogan has them; they cannot be mistaken for "head lights," and in this way the most sensitive as to jewelry for men may wear diamonds. There are some grand examples of the present mode of massive rings; everything, in fact, that is a necessity in these lines to the well-dressed man.

A NATURAL CONCLUSION after looking over a portion of this superb stock, prepared with so much care and artistic force by Mr. Grogan, is that it were utterly to go away from Pittsburgh to procure jewels, no matter how large or how moderate your ideas may be. Mr. Grogan's stock is a storehouse of ideas, and it is more than worth while to examine these beautiful objects, as you will derive the utmost satisfaction in feasting your eyes upon the finest collection in the city of Pittsburgh.

Not a Local Disease. Because Catarrh affects your head, it is not there a local disease. If it did not exist in your blood, it could not manifest itself in your nose. The blood now in your brain is the blood that has been circulating back in your heart again and soon distributed to your liver, stomach, kidneys, and so on. Whatever impurities the blood does not carry away cause what is called disease. Therefore, when you have

Catarrh a snuff or other inhalant can at most give only temporary relief. The only way to effect a cure is to attack the disease in the blood, by taking a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which eliminates all impurities and thus permanently cures Catarrh. The success of Hood's Sarsaparilla As a remedy for Catarrh is vouchered for by any people it has cured.
